Wednesday, February 18, 10:00 AM

AI seems to be everywhere these days. Search Google and the first thing we see is an AI summary of the results. While the benefits AI promises are huge, it can be disconcerting given the newness of it all, the rapid pace of change, and the many misconceptions that are flying around. Tim Bohn, the UW Madison's Deputy Chief Information Security Officer and the Assistant Director of CyberSecurity Programs and Business Systems, will discuss CyberSecurity, Privacy & AI with particular attention to the concerns that older adults might have.
